

Fourteen~~th~~ And Feeling It

Clemmie proclaimed
I belong to me, Clemmie Proter
and no one else ~~Beats~~ never have
and never will
and about that time his daddy
took a strap to him
you left out your two makers
boy, me and God
and of course, your mother

FOURTEEN AND FEELING IT

Clemmie proclaimed
I belong to me, Clemmie Prater
and no one else
 never have
and never will
took a strap to him
you left out your two makers
boy, me and God
and, of course, your mother

WRITING POETRY ON A STOLEN TABLE

What a good place a corner can be a creaking chair and a wooden table with a shady past
painted over once stolen twice
so the third owner declared to me
I, the fourth owner wonder if I'll be the last to write a poem on its face
